ACADEMY HAS 132 STUDENTS OPENING DAY

Growing Prestige Of Institution Here Increases Demand For Entrance.

The Gettysburg academy opened its 102nd year, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock with an enrollment of 132 students, the largest in the history of the school.

Dr. Charles H. Huber, headmaster, presided at the opening exercises.

The academy has limited its enrollment to within 120 students for a number of years, and at each opening has found more than the limited number seeking admission. The academy has resorted to a selected list of applicants, indicating the prestige the school has attained during the past decade.

This year, Doctor Huber has stretched the point somewhat, by permitting 132 students to enroll. Of this number, eight are classified as day students.

New Faculty Members

Twelve states, the District of Columbia, Cuba, South America and Panama are represented in the enrollment.

Pennsylvania sent the largest delegation with 67 students. New York is second with 20.

Other states and their enrollment follow: New Jersey, 11; Maryland, 10; Connecticut, 2, and one each from Massachusetts, Ohio, New Hampshire, District of Columbia, Delaware, North Carolina, Michigan and Texas; Cuba sent three students; South America, 2; Panama has one enrolled and seven of the eight day students are from Gettysburg, and one from Hanover.

George B. Bickle is a new member of the academy faculty, coming here from Keystone academy. Daniel W. Nicely, of Williamsport, and Roy L. Sloop, of the theological seminary, are also new members of the faculty staff.

C. R. Wolfe succeeds Doyle R. Leathers, who resigned to accept a position in New York state.

URGENT APPEAL AUTOISTS HEAR MADE FOR FUND OF CLUB WORK

Pathetic Situation Exists In Storm Path. County People Informed.

Adams county has been asked by John Barton Payne, head of the American Red Cross, to contribute $2,500 for the relief of the storm stricken residents of Porto Rico and Florida.

The request was received this morning by Miss Margaret McMillan, secretary of the county county chapter, following a mid-night report to the Washington headquarters of the organization, from field workers in the storm area.

The telegraphic request, as received here, follows:

"First surveys in the Porto Rico and Florida disaster received at midnight by cable from Field Worker Baker and by telephone from Field Worker Schafer indicate that the needs in both places far exceed the preliminary estimate. In Porto Rico, four hundred thousand are destitute and near to starvation with grave health problems and threatened epidemics. Refugees must be fed, clothed and sheltered by the Red Cross for a very long period. In Florida fifteen thousand families require and need immediate emergency aid and later we face the problem of rehabilitation, $5,000,000 will be the absolute minimum required as a relief fund, to render required assistance for these stricken people. This increase places your chapter quota at $2,500. I am confident that when the people of your community realize the grave need and the seriousness of the situation in the stricken area, where thousands of children are affected, they will respond immediately, in the same generous manner they have done in the past. I urge you to exert every effort possible to exceed this quota, if possible."

Forty-two dollars has been contributed so far, according to Miss McMillan. The contributions vary from $1 up, but any amount will be acceptable, said the secretary.

Pastors of the county have been asked to appeal for funds and clothing, from the pulpit, Sunday. Several pastors could not be reached by phone on Thursday or Friday, and these are requested to (Continued on Second Page.)

NEW SCHOOL IN HAMILTONBAN OPENS OCT. 1ST

Three Districts Schools To Send Their Pupils To Consolidated Building.

The new consolidated school building in Hamiltonban township will be opened Monday, October 1. It was announced this morning by the township school board through its secretary, Warren Martin. It is expected that at least 125 pupils will be enrolled.

The schools known as Union, West Fairfield and Station will be moved to the new building. Three rooms will be used this year, and next fall, a fourth room will be placed in use and the pupils from the Furnace school will attend there.

The fine, modern rural school building has just been completed by G. D. Pittenturf, Biglerville contractor, at a contract cost of $11,466. Digging of a well and other necessary improvements, not included in the building contract price, increased the total cost somewhat. The building is situated about an eighth of a mile west of Fairfield. It is of case brick and is about 84x78 feet in dimensions.

The teachers in the new building will be Miss Alma Henry, primary; Mrs. Ralph W. Baker, intermediate, and Miss Flora Witherow, grammar, all of Fairfield.

Pupils will be hauled to and from their homes to school in two buses by R. C. Polley, Fairfield, and H. C. Seifert, Iron Springs, who were given the bus contracts by the township school board.

Finger Marks May Dull Auto Lamps

A Hint To Motorists Given By President Of Gettysburg Motor Club.

Motorists who suspect that their headlights are not functioning to their full ability should bear in mind that often slight finger marks on the bulbs will cause a marked difference in the efficiency of one's road-illuminating equipment, says John W. Brehm, president of the Gettysburg Motor Club of Adams county, local affiliation of the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Brehm explains that very few persons consider this important fact of the thumb print when replacing their headlight bulbs and, he holds, this accounts for not a negligible degree of illuminating difficulties on the streets and highways.

"It doesn't take lengthy study to understand why finger marks on bulbs exert such a definitely adverse influence," says Mr. Brehm, "and therefore it's rather surprising to see how many motorists will entirely ignore this simple fact when making changes or having them made."

College Graduate, Teaching 58 Years, Says Young Folk Excel Those of 50 Years Ago

Rev. Dr. Holmes Dysinger, '78, Still Active On Midland College Faculty.

WINS HONORS

(Special To The Gettysburg Times)

Fremont, Neb., Sept. 21.—From behind the teacher's desk in a little one-roomed school house near Millintown, Pa., on Sept. 19, 1870, a lad of 17, the picture of confidence despite his youth, smiled out upon half a hundred pupils, 20 of whom were older and bigger than himself.

Reminiscing recently on the 58th anniversary of his entry into the teaching profession, Holmes Dysinger, D. D., LL. D., now 75 years old but still one of the most active members on the Midland college faculty here, told friends how he managed those older students attending his first school.

Used Girls To Curb Boys

"I gained the good will of the young ladies and they managed the young men for me," he confided with a twinkle in his still clear blue eyes.

After teaching for five years in and near Millintown, Doctor Dysinger entered Pennsylvania college, now Gettysburg college, and three years later, in 1878, received his bachelor of arts degree. He then taught for four years in the preparatory department of his alma mater, meanwhile receiving his master of arts degree in 1881.

President of Carthage

After a year on the faculty of North Carolina college, Mount Pleasant, N. C., Doctor Dysinger became professor of Latin and Greek at Newberry college, Newberry, S. C., in 1883, and remained there until 1888 when, at the age of 35, he was called to the presidency of Carthage college, Carthage, Ill.

Following seven years in the president's chair at Carthage, Doctor Dysinger resigned to enter the active ministry. Between 1895 and 1905, he held pastorates at Polo, Ill., Kansas City, Mo., and Vandergrift, Pa. In 1905, he became professor of philosophy at Midland college, a position which he has held for 23 years. He has also served as dean of Western Theological seminary since 1910.

Awarded Degrees

As a reward for his work as a teacher and minister, Doctor Dysinger has been honored by both Wittenberg college, Springfield, O., and Midland college, the former (Continued on Second Page.)

Summerfield Stellar, who resides on Hanover R. D. 5, along the McSherrystown highway, is a patient at the Hanover hospital, as a result of being run down by what is believed to have been a "hit and run" motorist about 6:30 p. m. Thursday. Stellar, a middle-aged man, is suffering from bad lacerations of the head and a possible fracture of the skull.

The accident which occurred along the Littlestown pike, near Mt. Pleasant, is said to have taken place when the car which struck Stellar was passing another automobile going in the opposite direction. The injured man was taken in the Hanover ambulance to the office of Dr. M. M. Fleagle, Hanover, who advised his removal to the Hanover hospital.

YALE STUDENTS ARE ACCUSED

Monterey Summer Colonists Attempted To Hold Up Truck Driver, Charge.

Two Yale students today were held in $1,000 each on charges of impersonating federal officers and assault with intent to rob as a result of an alleged attack on a Waynesboro grocer.

The youths, Alexander Knapp, of Baltimore, and Sydney R. Prince, Jr., of Washington, arrested early on the morning of September 4, are accused of holding up H. M. Rowe, at Buena Vista, and attempting to board his truck. They were captured a short time later by Rowe's helper and a Buena Vista garage man who had been asked to aid in the search for the youths.

Sydney R. Prince, Sr., furnished bail for his son and Knapp in Waynesboro. They will be tried next week. Knapp and Prince, who were spending the summer at Monterey, told police after their arrest that they thought Rowe's truck contained liquor.

Miss Bell has shown marked improvement in the last 24 hours while Snyder, who has not fully regained consciousness, is said to be gaining slightly, and high hopes are entertained for his recovery. Snyder regains a semi-conscious state, at times, but lapses into a state of coma.

Physicians at the hospital are exerting every effort to save the man, and each day the hopes grow brighter, despite his semi-conscious condition.

EX-SENATOR IS INDICTED FOR LOOTING BANKS

Embezzlement On Three Counts Returned Against Guy W. Brown, In Erie.

Erie, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Guy W. Brown, former state senator of Fayette county, was indicted here today by the Federal grand jury charged with embezzling and misappropriating funds of two Fayette county banks and of the Presbytery of Red Stone, Fayette county. Three indictments were returned against him.

Jesse R. Brown, brother of the former state senator, also was named in one of the indictments.

The total amount of Guy Brown's alleged defalcations was $120,128 according to James I. Marsh, special prosecutor. Marsh said that $15,000 of the money belonged to the Presbytery of which Brown was the treasurer.

The charges against Brown were an outgrowth of the failure of the two banks involved, the First National bank of Webster and the Fayette city National bank. Guy Brown was a director of the Fayette City bank and a director of the Webster bank. His brother, Jesse, also was a director of both institutions.

The prosecutor also charged that bonds of the Fayette city water department, were involved in the alleged defalcations.

HIGH ELEVEN IN FINE SHAPE FOR FIRST STRUGGLE

Coach Martin Rounds Maroon And White Gridmen Into Excellent Working Machine.

Coach Eugene Martin and his Maroon and White gridmen have rounded out their third week of practice and the team is ready for action, although the first battle is still a week off. The squad is in tip-top form but another week of practice will be used to the best possible advantage.

Monday night Coach Martin sent the squad through a workout that consisted of punting, passing, line charging and signal drill. Tuesday was an ideal football day and the high team made good use of it with a long scrimmage.

The regulars broke through several times with plays that would have meant touchdowns but Martin kept the ball in one position regardless of the gains. Knox flashed fine form on end runs, while Bushman, Wilson and Weikert all hit the line hard. This quartet of backs appears fast and sure-footed and should cause opposing teams plenty of trouble in the battles to come.

The line was composed of Rummel and Swisher, ends; Irvin and Warren, tackles; Hartman and Wernick, guards, and Reaser, center. "Rich" Thomas, end, was kept out of action by an infected arm, but he will be back in harness in a few days. This line opened big holes time and again and were powerful on the defense.

The second team displayed a fighting and determined crew, many of whom will see plenty of action before the season closes. The first line defense was made up of Wentz and Pitzer, ends; Stock and Harbaugh, tackles; Lott and Keefer, guards, and Codori, center.

The backfield was composed of Smith, Kitzmiller, Roddy and Fiscel. On their chance on the offense the second team backs displayed some fine form, the ball carriers proving that they will be great aid to Martin.

The line put up a good battle against their heavier opponents.

institution giving him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity in 1889, while the latter school gave him the honorary degree of doctor of law in 1917.

In the summer of 1927, Doctor Dyingser was one of the Lutheran church's four commissioners to the world conference on faith and order at Lausanne, Switzerland. Last spring, on the 50th anniversary of the graduation from Gettysburg, he was inducted to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity.

Praise For Young Folk

"A steady, satisfactory grind are the words I would use in describing my teaching career," Doctor Dyingser declared, concluding his reminiscences. "At times it has seemed hard to continue in the classroom day after day, but everytime I have stopped to think of the happiness those contacts with the young folk have brought me, I am greatly satisfied with things as they have been."

"Just one thing more. Let me deny the gossip that young folk today are bad. Young people of today are better than those of 50 years ago. Moreover, they are stronger of body and keener of mind."

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
The despatching Betsy Patterson is staying at Sweet Springs Inn with her father and aunt. Surrounded by eager admirers she is secretly attracted to the handsome La Vert, her French tutor, who, unknown to her, has fought and won a duel in her behalf earlier in the story. Two French officers arrive at the inn while she is preparing for a lesson with La Vert. She is angry when he leaves her abruptly and does not see the officers salute. They greet La Vert as the runaway Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother and American ambassador of Napoleon. He pleads with them for another week incognito at the Springs.

St. Pierre looked at Dufresne, puzzled as to how to proceed in the matter. "Mon Capitaine," he began, "Napoleon has sent to us his special envoy, M. De Langiac. We have received your brother's instructions, which are, that you sail for France immediately upon the conclusion of the festivities arranged by the Ex-Minister Monroe of Baltimore."

Jerome gasped. Sail for France—now! He couldn't—he wouldn't. Now—just when his hopes had risen. Why, that very morning Betsy—Miss Betsy, he corrected himself—had held out promises of dreams fulfilled. Only a few more days of this masquerade, and then he would know what he wanted to

She looked at him for a moment. know. A little time was all he asked—just a little time. But not to return to France. Not now.

"Return to France!" he gasped. The words that had been tumbling about in his mind dropped from his lips with all seriousness. "Return to France—again—ah, St. Pierre, can you not realize that this means to me?" He appealed pathetically to the more sympathetic of the two soldiers.

"You may not evade your destiny, Captain Bonaparte," St. Pierre shook his head. "It is arranged that you marry the Princess Friedericka of Wurtemberg. This marriage is for France!" The last sentence was spoken with a proud determination.

"Well," Jerome sighed and shrugged his shoulders, "since I am to do so much for France in the future, surely I may do something for myself in the present. Ah—no—no!" He shook his head as St. Pierre and Dufresne both started to speak. "I shall not further distress you, my good friends. You may rely on me. But one more lesson with my pupil, I beg of you. For the rest of my life, I shall belong to France. Allow me but this one more hour for—myself."

As Jerome stood pleading the gruff voice of Major Patterson came mumbled along the hallway, and that gentleman walked out on to the porch. He looked at the visitors with little curiosity, more interested in reading the letters he carried. But as he reached the group, Jerome halted him.

"One moment, Monsieur," the man whom Patterson knew as La Vert, the French tutor, stopped him. "May I humbly crave the honor of presenting two of my fellow countrymen, M. Dufresne and M. St. Pierre. My employer, M. Patterson, gentlemen, he turned to his visitors.

The military gentlemen bowed, clicking their heels together. Major Patterson grunted.

"What! More Frenchmen? The Springs will presently become impossible for a plain American," he grumbled. "Gad, I can have no peace here at all. My parlor crowded with Betty's friends—more Frenchmen around the Springs—" he passed on, still mumbling. "Ah, truly it is the delight of my life to anger him," Jerome looked after the figure, laughing. "He pays me and he treats me like a—what they call—nigger. Should he discover who I am—it would throw him into apoplexy." He threw back his head and laughed heartily. "Is the daughter, your pupil, like her father?" Dufresne demanded, scowling after Patterson.

"Betsy? Ah, no—not!" Jerome smiled, his dark eyes dreaming far away again. "She is like no one you have ever seen before." St. Pierre and Dufresne exchanged a quiet smile. "Fire and ice she is! Gracious and haughty! Sweet and imperious! Proud as the devil! She is like a queen—an empress! She was born to command—and all men to follow like humble, unquestioning slaves. Ah, glorious Betsy is perfection!"

"But you forget, sir, that you are the brother of the First Consul of France!" Dufresne interrupted the eulogy to the charms of the Baltimore Belle.

"Unfortunately, you will never allow me to forget that," Jerome retorted, smiling. "I should be more than glad, if it were possible."

"However, it is not," Dufresne answered. "You soon can you be ready to start?"

"Gentlemen, please," Jerome shook his head. "Just this once—it will not matter—out of a lifetime. Just one hour—and then you shall command me as you will. For one hour permit me to be Monsieur La Vert, and I shall ask nothing more. I promise. I swear it."

Dufresne and St. Pierre looked at each other. And St. Pierre nodded his head in acquiescence. "For one hour, then," he agreed. "And then you will be ready to leave for Baltimore."

"One hour!" Jerome held up his hand. "One hour, and I shall be ready. You will find entertainment within, gentlemen," he motioned towards the bar. "For one more hour I am Monsieur La Vert."

They nodded their heads in agreement and sought the pleasantly cool interior of the hostelry.

CHAPTER VI

With quick steps Jerome sought the Patterson suite. He hurried down the long hallway, but as he reached the door he paused and then slowly turned the big brass handle of the double doors. He walked into the room with an outwardly unperturbed manner that belied his inner emotions. Betsy and Mary were seated in a corner of the room, surrounded by a group of laughing, admiring men. Betsy, as usual was dominating the conversation, like a queen in the midst of her court. All eyes followed her every movement; all ears hung on her every word; all lips took their cue from her speeches. And Jerome waited, gazing over the scene.

Sensing his presence, Betsy turned quickly. She looked at him for a moment, and then deliberately averted her head. She laughed and talked with even more volubility. But Jerome, undaunted, sauntered slowly across the room and stood behind his erstwhile pupil. Mistress Betsy ran on as though there had been no interruption. Hesitatingly, the tutor leaned over her shoulder.

"Pardon, M'mselle," he began, "but I am ready for the lesson."

Betsy turned her shapely head and glanced at her tutor calmly and coldly.

"You forget, Sir!" Her voice was icy. "That is for me to say." She turned back to her friends, who stared at this intruder with hostile eyes. The intruder merely bowed, turned on his heel, and stepped through the window, leaving a rather puzzled Betsy behind.

"And then what happened, Betty," one of the admirers begged for the continuation of the story.

"Then, Auntie Ellen went to papa, and—"

"But Betsy's voice was lost in the sudden opening of the door and the heavy voice of her father.

"Betsy! Ellen! Great News!" he shouted, waving a letter in his hand, and rushing to his daughter, his face as red as ever. "Great news!" He spluttered in his excitement.

"News! What is it, Papa?" Betsy jumped up excitedly.

"We are to see him—entertain him—Minister Monroe has arranged it—" Patterson was bursting with his triumph.

"Him? Who?" Miss Massenbird, properly chaperoning her niece's morning entertainment, too, jumped up from her rocking chair in the corner where she had been quietly snatching "forty winks."

"Has arranged what?" Betsy's eyes were sparkling. "Let me see, papa," she reached for the letter, but the Major flattered it above her head.

"What you most longed for," he caught his daughter's hand. "We are to see him—you are to be his hostess—Think of it—the hostess of Jerome Bonaparte!"

"Jerome Bonaparte!" Betsy exclaimed.

NO ONE NEED SUFFER WITH PILES ANYMORE

Piles Relieved Within 24 Hours Users Say And Permanent Too
OUT TOWN REPORTS PROVE CLAIMS TRUE

"One of my customers had complained so long and tried so many things for piles I never dreamed he would ever be cured," declared a druggist recently. It looked like a hopeless case to me which only a surgeon could help, but he came in and bought a bottle of Colace Pile Pills and on buying the second and third reported he believed results were coming at last. He was so afraid of a return of the pile trouble he kept taking them for weeks after he claimed all signs had disappeared—then rather timidly he quit, and proudly he told me the other day, he was free at last and I hope so, continued this druggist who like the long suffering public could not conceive of any tablet swallowed with a glass of water bringing relief to blind, itching, bleeding, chronic piles or hemorrhoids. To prove results are lasting, read the following from a man among the very first to test Colace.

"For several years I suffered almost constantly with piles, at times confined to my home," writes C. R. Vander Carr. "I tried practically every remedy on the market with no lasting results until I tried Colace Pile Pills. Within 24 hours of the time I started taking Colace I felt better and in a few days every sign of my trouble had disappeared. This was about three years ago and I have never been troubled since. I have recommended Colace to dozens of people and the results have always been the same," continued Mr. Vander Carr, Grand Mere, P. Q., Canada.

Down past the stomach and into the bowels go these pills to dissolve there and form a healing, soothing, corrective medicine reaching the most remote places—stopping pain quick-acting irritation and helping nature eliminate completely the cause thereby bringing lasting relief.

Not a laxative, purely vegetable, so harmless one may take double doses without harm. Colace Pile Pills, without the aid of operation, nasty salves or suppositories, may be relied upon to bring desired results, in a remarkably short time, depending on the case, of course.

If your own druggist hasn't Colace Pile Pills, send 75c to Colace Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md., for bottle with directions, return mail prepaid—adv.

Gettysburg college opened its football season by defeating the Bloomsburg Normal school Saturday afternoon in a one sided game by the score of 55 to 0. The field was in poor condition, owing to the recent rains and the weather was not conducive to fast football. Coach Mauthe gave all his men a chance and for so early in the season the men made a creditable showing.

Lynn Sheads, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheads, of East Middle street, received a $15 check for having the finest decorated window in Chester at the time of the State Firemen's Fair, held there several weeks ago. Mr. Sheads is manager of the J. C. McCrory store there and is the youngest manager of any of the chain of the McCrory stores in the United States.

Since starting the daily trips on June 25th the auto bus running from Caledonia to Gettysburg has been late but once. The car was six minutes late on that occasion, and still made connections with the trolley.

A social was held in St. James' church Thursday evening, at which more than two hundred persons were present. A program, containing a sketch by Miss Caroline Bream, a girls' quartette and a little children's chorus, was rendered. The room was prettily decorated to represent a forest, with cedar, pine, ferns, vines and moss and a spring of "punch" was secluded in the "woods."

Planning Farmers' Day.—Gettysburg is going to have a Farmers' Day this year—bigger and better than the success of last year. It will be on Saturday, October 18.

Last Wednesday evening a meeting was held on call of Mr. Wm. Arch McClean, president of the Board of Trade. Mr. McClean was made president and George E. Spangler, treasurer. Roy P. Funkhouser, P. W. Stallsmith and N. L. Minter were appointed a committee to interview merchants in preparation of a premium list. C. Wm. Beale, John F. Walter and Philip R. Bille are a committee on program and entertainment, and Penrose Myers heads the soliciting committee.

Many of the merchants favor a program of entertainment that was lacking in the event of last year, and the committee appointed for that purpose are arranging a series of sports and entertaining features that will be pleasing.

A parade is planned for mid day in which the students and college will participate. Several bands will be engaged to furnish music for the day.

Wedding Bells.—Baker—Tudor. Miss Edna Tudor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Tudor, of Spring, avenue, and Maurice E. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Baker, of Baltimore street, were married at St. Paul's Lutheran parsonage, Hagerstown, last Tuesday evening, by Rev. W. S. Owen.

The groom is a graduate of Gettysburg college, and is now in the employ of The Gettysburg Times. They will reside for the present at the home of the bride's parents on Springs avenue.

Settle.—Plank.—Miss Maude A. Plank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jere Plank, of near Knoxlyn, and John Clifford Settle, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Settle, of Seven Stars, were married at the home of Rev. A. R. Steck in York, on Wednesday evening at six o'clock. A reception was later tendered to the bridal party at the home of Miss Mary Emma Leifer.

After a short wedding trip, they will return to their newly furnished home at Seven Stars where they will be at home to their friends.

Spangler.—Hoffheins.—Miss Annie Spangler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Collin E. Spangler, formerly of this place, was married to Percy Hoffheins, proprietor of a large lunch room in York, Thursday, in the parlor of the Colonial Hotel, at York, by Rev. H. H. Webber. The wedding came as a surprise to her family.

After returning from a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffheins will reside in York. Mr. Hoffheins is a former resident of near New Chester.

Lincoln's Address.—November 19th will mark the fiftieth year since Abraham Lincoln visited the Battlefield of Gettysburg at the formal dedication of the Soldiers National Cemetery and handed down to posterity his ever memorable address that now stands as a master piece of English prose. It is only fitting and proper that local people should in some way commemorate the Fiftieth Anniversary of this martyred President's visit here.

Confederate Monument in Place.—A granite memorial erected by the Texas Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy to Hood's Texas Brigade was put in place on West Confederate Avenue last Wednesday.

The monument consists of two large granite stones placed on a heavy pedestal, bearing an inscription. This is the first Confederate monument that has been completed on the West Confederate Avenue. It is located near the intersection of the avenue with the Emmitsburg road.

No arrangements have been made for the dedication of the new memorial.

Hop Lee's Son Must Return.—Investigation by the Immigration authorities of the Philadelphia Immigration station at Gloucester, N. J., disclosed the fact that So Ho Don Hon, youngest son of Hop Lee, who conducts a laundry in this place, is in America illegally, having been smuggled into the country at San Francisco five years ago, and he will be deported to China as soon as the necessary steps have been taken.

It developed at a hearing before R. F. Topper, United States Commissioner, that Hop had paid $300 to a notorious syndicate, with stations in Hong Kong, China and San Francisco, for the admission of his son into this country, as the son of a merchant in San Francisco.

Personal.—Mrs. Anna Eyer and Miss Anna Mosey are the guests of C. E. Swisher at his home.

Mrs. Charles Lott is spending some time at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Troxell, on York street.

THE TEST OF GOLF

A coward can whistle and sing along
When his drives are straight and his irons long,
And the awkward duffer can wear a grin
The day that his putts are dropping in,
But golf is queer, as is often said,
And the best of players will lift his head,
And the real test of your soul, my lad,
Is how do you act when your game is bad?

Work as you will, it is all the same,
There will come the day when you're off your game,
When you cannot drive as you know you should,
And the best of your shots is far from good,
Well, in times like that is your courage stout?
Do you fling your club when a putt stays out?
Can you say to me as your score you tell,
My game was bad but I played it well?

There is more to game than the scores you make
And the balls you win and the cups you take,
The fellow who wins can always smile,
But look them over, the rank and file,
And the sturdiest souls on the links you tread
Aren't the boys who always come out ahead,
But the ones who lose when they know they must
And still stay manly and clean and just.

They take the loss with its bitter sting
And still hold fast to the finer thing,
The sense of fairness and will to be Fit for a good man's company.
They have lost the touch which success requires
But not the joy which the game inspires,
They may fail as golfers again and again,
But no one shall say that they failed as men.

NAPOLIONIC SURVIVAL
Paris.—Napoleon is responsible for the Sphinx-head emblem for the military interpreters. It dates from his Egyptian campaign, when many Egyptologists served as army interpreters.

The highest motor road is on Pike's Peak in Colorado, 14,009 feet above sea level, according to the Gettysburg Motor Club of Adams county.

I am sure you would be frightened if, on a dark night in the wood, you suddenly heard a gruff voice say:

"Fee, fie, fo, funny,
I smell the blood of a little bunny."

as I mentioned in the last story. But, would you believe it? the little rabbit wasn't. "Fear not, comrade," he said to the prince. "I have several Magic Charms with me." But the little white snake who was really a princess under a cruel spell, you remember, crawled into the prince's coat pocket. The next minute there was a great crashing of bushes, and a frightened bat, or maybe it was a little flying mouse, for it looked like one with a pair of wings,—whispered to the prince. "Here comes the dreadful wild man!"

Just then the moon came out from behind the clouds and shone right down on the wild man. Dear, dear! Wasn't he a terrifying looking person? Well, I just guess he was. Long hair fell down his back and whiskers down his chest to his waist. In his right hand he carried a great club covered with iron knobs and over his shoulders a black bear skin.

"Fee, fie, fo, funny,
Here is a prince and a little bunny."

he shouted, swinging on high his great club. Yes, three times around he swung that club.

"Have a care, you churl!" cried the prince, drawing his sword.

"Fee, fie, fo, funny!" shouted the dreadful Wild Man, and he swung his club again, but it never hit the prince because he nimbly jumped behind a tree. But, goodness me! It hit the tree and broke it off right in the middle. With a cry of rage, the Wild Man then rushed at the little rabbit. But, goodness me! again, the little bunny was even more nimble than the prince, and he dodged him. The little rabbit rubbed his magic ring three times and a half and at once the little Black Man appeared. And this time he brought with him seven little black men, who, in less time than I can take to tell it, bound the Wild Man fast and then led him away to the Fairy King's prison, where they bobbed his hair and shaved his beard and made him work for a year and a day.

At the end of that time he became a good man, and from then on taught school in a small country town for the rest of his days. All the people called him Professor Woodman, because he knew all about tree and plants and the stars and the moon.

"Well, my little comrades," cried the prince. "I am certainly under great obligations to you. You have not only rescued me from a prison tiny white snake in his furry paw. Thanking Captain Swan, they again started off on their journey of adventure. By and by, after a while and maybe a mile, they met a wicked wizard, who changed little toads into kangaroos and elephants into mice. No sooner did he see the bunny boy and the tiny white snake than he cried, "Ha, ha, ha, ha! Now I'll have lots of fun! I shall turn you both into something very queer. Let me think," and he scratched his ear with his magic wand.

All of a sudden he shouted, "Presto! Change!" and into a horse turned the little rabbit. "Presto! Change!" again shouted the wicked wizard and, Oh, dear me! the little white snake became a bird.

"Now you may go," laughed the wicked wizard, thinking it a great joke to have gotten the best of the little rabbit and his many magic charms.

Well, there was nothing else to do, so off trotted the bunny boy, for he was now a horse, you see, and after him flew the tiny white snake, for don't forget that she is now a bird. By and by they came to an old tree, in the trunk of which hung a tiny door. All of a sudden it swung open and a little dwarf, with kind brown eyes and a pleasant smile, exclaimed:

"You're not really a horse. You're not really a bird!"

"No, we are not," agreed the little bunny. "But how do you know that, I should like to hear?"

"Because you wear a boot on one of your feet," replied the dwarf, with a chuckle. "And you have a snake's tail," he went on, turning to the little bird, who was really the white snake, you know.

"Maybe you can help us to regain our natural forms," sighed the little rabbit.

"If you will follow the brook for a mile you will come to a pond of lilies. Hunt among them until you find one as blue as the sky. Then rub it gently on your nose and on the little bird's toes, and you both will regain your natural shapes in the next story," promised the dwarf.

OLD FOLKS BECOME YOUTHFUL AND STIFFNESS OF OLD AGE FADES AWAY

Sounds Like A Joke—But Try It and See—You Will Be Pleasantly Amazed. Trainer of Washington Ball Club After 25 Years of Experience and Study Tells How To Keep Supple, Free of Rheumatic Aches and Pains, Though Old

HERB PENNOCK, TY COBB, WALTER JOHNSON AND HUNDREDS OF ATHLETES USE IT

WALTER JOHNSON, Pitcher

"I have used Mike Martin's Liniment for many years and consider it the best liniment ever made for a pitcher's arm, or for sore, achy, stiff muscles. All the men I know in the game use Mike Martin's Liniment, too."

(Signed) WALTER JOHNSON, Manager Newark Ball Club.

TY COBB

"Without the aid of Mike Martin's Liniment it would have been impossible for me to play ball during a recent season. You will recall my knee was seriously injured and I attribute my quick recovery exclusively to Mike Martin's Liniment."

(Signed) TYRUS R. COBB.

Rheumatic, Stiff, Lame, Achy Old Folks Stooped Over With Age—Apply Big League Liniment—Feel Spry As Kids Once Again.

In Damp, Cold, Rheumatic Weather, Works Like a Charm

MIKE MARTIN, Trainer Washington Baseball Club

"I wish I could take every old man and woman in the land into the Club House out at the ball park and give them a good rubdown with the liniment we use in the big league to take the kinks, stiffness and aches out of the 'Baseball Stars,' declared Mike Martin, trainer of the Washington Baseball Club.

Big league stars, traveling about sweating one minute and getting chilled to the bone the next, contract all sorts of rheumatic troubles, aches, pains, and kindred ills, besides getting more than their share of strains, sprains and hurts.

Some of the stars playing wonderful baseball today are old men as ball players go, yet to see them prancing out into the ball field full of pep and youthful spirit you'd never dream they ever had an ache or pain in their lives.

HERE'S THE SECRET

You folks, who in damp, cold, miserable weather, feel achy, lame, rheumatic and stiff—just drop into your drug store and ask them for a bottle of Mike Martin's Liniment (the liniment used in the big league).

Take the bottle home with you. After you have taken a good, hot bath, get somebody in the family to thoroughly rub you with Mike Martin's Liniment like the directions say on the bottle and in the folder which comes with it. Don't be afraid of catching cold—you need not worry on that score, for the liniment will warm and soothe your sleep and next morning you will wake up feeling like a new person. Rub it in thoroughly. It has a delightfully nice odor and wouldn't blister the tender skin of a child. If you have cold it drives it out like magic, along with all signs of rheumatic pains, stiffness, lameness, etc.

You feel so good—so supple—so fine—that you'll crave one of these invigorating rubs every once in a while and what a wonderful difference it makes in the way you look and feel. It is positively a revelation. You feel like running a footrace or playing baseball yourself. A good-sized bottle costs very little—no more than the nastiest old-time liniments that blister, smell bad and seldom do much good. Mike Martin's Liniment puts warmth, health-glow and a single of youthful vitality into those old muscles, joints, back and limbs of elderly people.

Generous size bottle, 65c; twice as much, $1.00. If druggist hasn't size you want, write Mike Martin, Trainer, Ball Park, Washington, D. C., enclose price, and get a bottle prepaid to your door, parcel post.

RAY KREMER

"We ball players get lame, stiff, sore, achy, and crippled up a lot. Using the right liniment is important with us. I use Mike Martin's Liniment because it is the best made."

WHEN AN 80-MILE HURRICANE LASHED THROUGH THE SOUTH

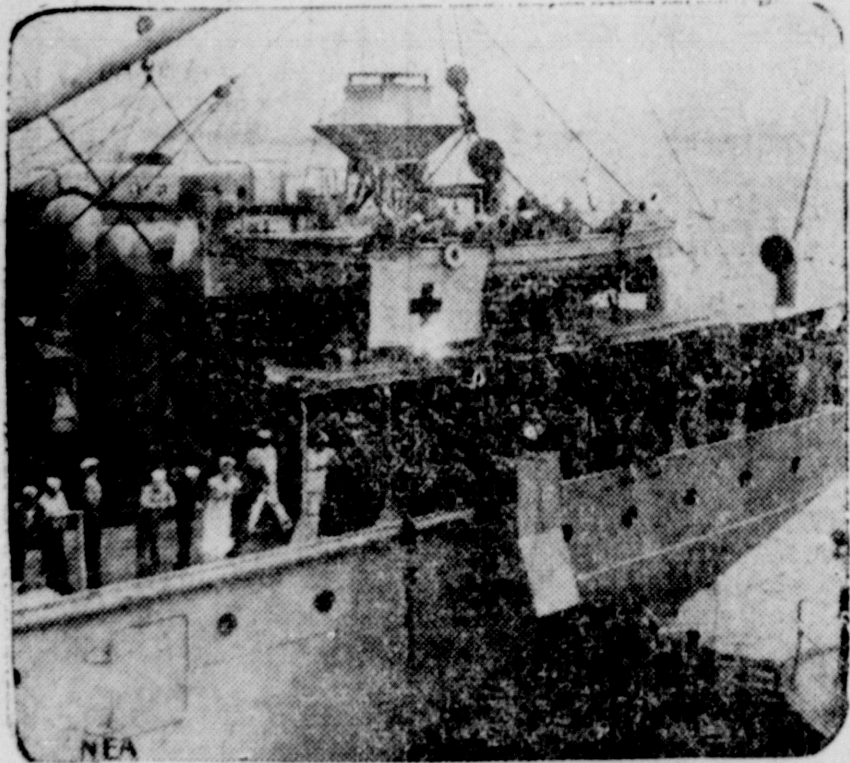

This remarkable picture, taken by an NEA Service photographer at the risk of his life, shows the West Indies-Florida hurricane in action. The scene is City Park, a favorite resort for winter tourists. Notice the palm trees bent nearly double by the wind's force, others flattened by the storm.

Boats were as match boxes tossing in the ocean when hurricane swept over Florida. Photo shows some of the boats which were swept far inland by force of gale and rough seas.

The municipal palace in San Juan, Porto Rico, including the City Hall and fronted by the beautiful Plaza Baldorioty, was in the path of the hurricane that swept across Porto Rico, claiming hundreds of lives and wrecking untold property damage.

Bound for devastated Porto Rico, with emergency supplies for thousands of homeless, hungry and sick, the U. S. transport Bridge is shown as it left New York harbor. One of the Red Cross flags it carries is visible in the center of the picture. Ten days' food for 100,000 persons, clothing for 5,000, and typhoid anti-toxin were packed in the holds of the ship.

Inhabitants of San Juan, dazed by the extent of ruin wrought by recent hurricane, are shown removing debris from the streets of the stricken capital. Many refugees from interior fled to San Juan.

THESE PHOTOS ARE COPYRIGHT BY NEA AND PACIFIC AND ATLANTIC AIRPLANES, TELEPHOTO, FAST TRAINS, AUTOMOBILES AND SPECIAL DELIVERY SERVICE WERE RESORTED TO BRING THESE PICTURES TO THE GETTYSBURG TIMES.

Tales of terror, death and destitution in path of tropical hurricane add to horrors as reports come in from desolated regions. Dead are estimated at 770 to 1,570 in West Indies. Relief measures are under way as country rushes to rescue. This photo (at the left) shows food and supplies for stricken Porto Rico being loaded into hold of the S. S. Bridge at New York.

Wreckage piled in front of demolished store fronts made the principal streets of West Palm Beach, Florida, resemble junkyards. Roofs were piled in the street by the hurricane, signs torn off and show windows blown in.

Wandering about these debris filled streets of San Juan are swarms of refugees from the interior of Porto Rico. They sought shelter in the capital city after their homes and crops had been destroyed.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY FOR GRAY HAIR OR BALDNESS

Banishes Dandruff, Eczema Etc. Revives Youthful Lustre and Color

RESULTS AMAZING FOLKS HERE SAY

"I bought a bottle for one of the children to stop the itching rash and dandruff for which it was wonderful and using it on my own scalp I was amazed to notice my hair getting thicker, more even colored and every gray hair turned back again, like magic," enthusiastically declared a lady whose beautiful head of hair is a walking advertisement to the success of Lea's Hair Tonic.

"Lea's Hair Tonic has the faint odor of bay rum and contains sulphur which as everyone knows is a natural part of human hair, but in addition it has seven ingredients a doctor labored years to work out in his search for something harmless which one could use for years with unvarying change in the hair. He didn't want an oldtime dye that brings such shocking shades, ever growing worse and darker. He sought a tonic to be rubbed into the scalp and not on the hair. (You can dip hair in a basin of Lea's Hair Tonic with no change in color, but rub it into the hair roots nightly a few times and watch the hair gradually resume from root to tip its youthful color of blonde, red, brown or black, whichever it originally was and who can give your hair a more becoming shade than the one nature gave you first?

Applied at home with finger tips like any tonic, experts cannot detect its use. In about three applications dandruff vanishes and the scalp begins taking on a healthy tone—then the mirror whispers a little secret—you are NOT gray any more and your hair is thicker and you look years younger. Men swear by it. Prominent men and women constantly before the public wouldn't dream of staining their scalp with dyes but Lea's is different—thousands use it unknown except to the family and you may too for druggists have Lea's Hair Tonic, or send dollar bill to Lea Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. for bottle and directions, return mail, adv.

"THE ESCAPE"

Why Not LIVE-- And Profit, Too!

Many excellent, substantial homes in this city are branded "old" because their heating and plumbing facilities are out of step with the times.

We can show you how to modernize those facilities and experience a new joy and pride in your home. And if you ever want to sell or rent, these modern improvements will add more value to your property than they cost. They make you a PROFIT!

During September we specialize in heating plant inspection FREE—and will be glad to make such an inspection, and an entire "health examination" of your home, without any obligation to you—if you will ask us.
